PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

All society and personal notes for the Sunday issue of the Journal, to secure publication, must be in the hands of the city editor by Saturday

Now that the season for entertaining has fairly began, the question with the prospective hostess is, what to have. One can always have a reception for a formal affair. or a card party for a semi-formal gathering. Anything that is new and out of this routine is gladly welcomed, and many an hour has been spent in almost vain endeavor to introduce some nevelty that shall please and entertain the guests. The relating of how people entertain in other places often gives one a good idea for their own party. A delightful company, which may be imitated successfully, is thus described by the Lebanon Patriot: "Supper was served at about 8:30 P. M., and the novel way in which partners for the occasion were selected created much amusement. Each gentleman was given a card with the name of some county, and each lady with the county-seats. At a given signal the counties began the search for their countyseats, and it was some time before the entire list was complete. At the conclusion of the banquet each guest was given a souvenir in the form of a silk bag and cord, with the explanation that the one who succeeded in filling the same first with peanuts scattered about the house would receive some handsome prizes. This caused much scrambling and merriment." Nor was this all. For after the prizes had been awarded there were musical numbers by several friends. The selection of partners could be used at a card party, and the bags to be filled with nuts would do admirably for a children's, where it so frequently happens seats, and it was some time before the enchildren's, where it so frequently happens that the little guests are with difficulty en-

If you want to be exactly in style you must wear bow-knots, the latest form in scarf and breast-pins. The newest brocades have the bow-knot design, and from bonnet to slipper they are the thing. They rest on the corsage, dance on the sleeves and beb up and down serenely on the skirts of party and neglige toilets, and are as fanciful and airy as a butterfly, which, on gowns, they are supposed to imitate.
